Department of Physics
Revised May 2018

The Physics department has a well-equipped set of spaces for metal and woodworking collectively known as the Physics Department Educational Shop (herein referred to as “the shop”). These facilities are reserved for educational purposes, and membership in the shop is open to MIT physics students and affiliates.

As a member of the shop, one is expected to know and follow the rules and procedures of the shop and MIT, and further to recognize the authority of the shop’s management, and the MIT Environment, Health & Safety Office.

By signing this document, the prospective member agrees to the provisions listed below, those incorporated by reference, as well as those which may be enacted in the future by the shop, its management, or the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

It is agreed and understood that:

- The member has read, understood, and accepted the rules of the shop. While on the premises of the shop, the member will follow the rules, policies, and procedures of both the shop and MIT, for the safety of all users.
- Membership is a privilege extended by the shop and MIT. Failure to abide by the aforementioned rules or conduct oneself in a safe manner may result in suspension or revocation of shop privileges, at the discretion of the shop management.
- The shop environment poses inherent hazards, and it is the responsibility of every shop member to be aware of these hazards.
- The member agrees to release and hold harmless the shop, MIT, its employees and agents with respect to any and all claims of any type whatsoever, including claims for bodily injury, personal injury or property damage arising out of activities at the shop.
